

China Development Brief's Bibliography of English-language Sources on Civil Society

Editor's Note: This bibliography is a response to the many students and scholars who contact us for suggestions about written sources on civil society in China. It attempts to list many of the writings on civil society, with an emphasis on China. The hardest part of creating this bibliography was deciding how to categorize these writings, and whether or not some writings should be included even though they were not directly about civil society. The categories we use here are by no means perfect and overlap. We hope though that they offer a useful way to access what has been written on the subject. Thanks to Emily Chesborough who created the template for this bibliography and input many of the entries you see here. This bibliography is of course a work in progress. If you see any errors, or would like to submit additions to this bibliography, please email us at inquiries@chinadevelopmentbrief.cn.
